

Written By: Joe Hunter
Translated By: Marilyn Copenace &
Rose Tuesday
Illustrated By: Tim R. Smith

Text copyright © 2018 Joe Hunter Illustrations copyright © 2017 by Tim R. Smith

All rights reserved. The use of any part of this publication reproduced, transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, or stored in a retrieval system, without the prior written consent of the publisher—or, in case of photocopying or other reprographic copying, a licence from the Canadian Copyright Licensing Agency—is an infringement of the copyright law.

Translations by Marilyn Copenace

Acknowledgements

Name, the Lake Sturgeon, has been a part of my life for as long as I can remember. My parents, Albert and Bella Hunter were commercial sturgeon fishers when I was growing up. Back then, the sturgeon allowed my parents to put food on the table for our large family. I thank my parents, and Name for all they have provided to me.

Today, I am so honoured to be able to give back to Name. Since 1995, I have been involved in the sturgeon hatchery on the Rainy River First Nations. I am grateful to have learned so much about Name and to have helped so many areas in North America bring the sturgeon back to their waters. I thank my community.

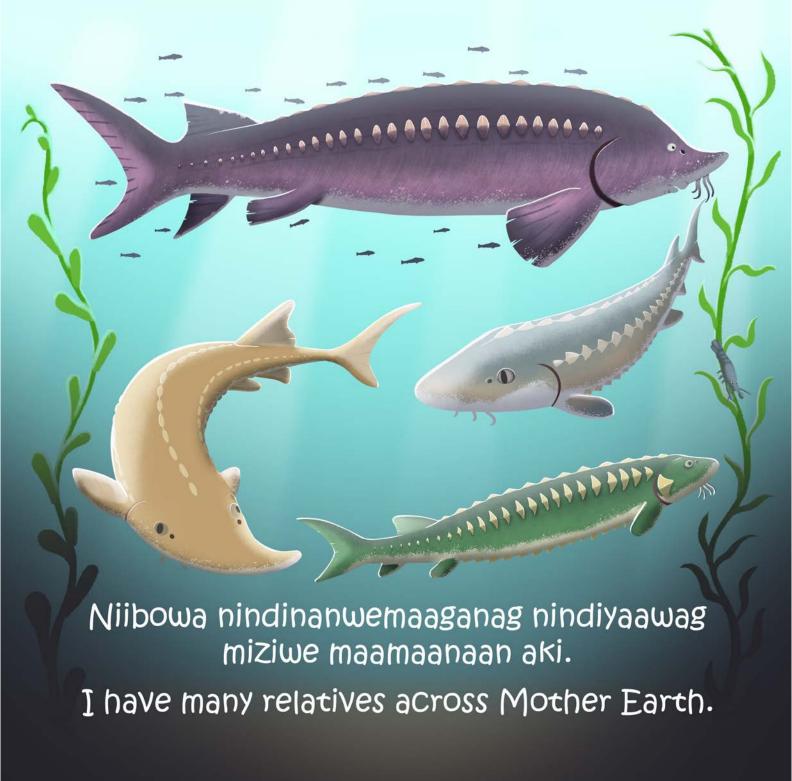

I'd like to thank those who are teaching me the language and wish to thank Marilyn Copenace for helping with the translations, allowing us to learn about Name in Anishinaabemowin.

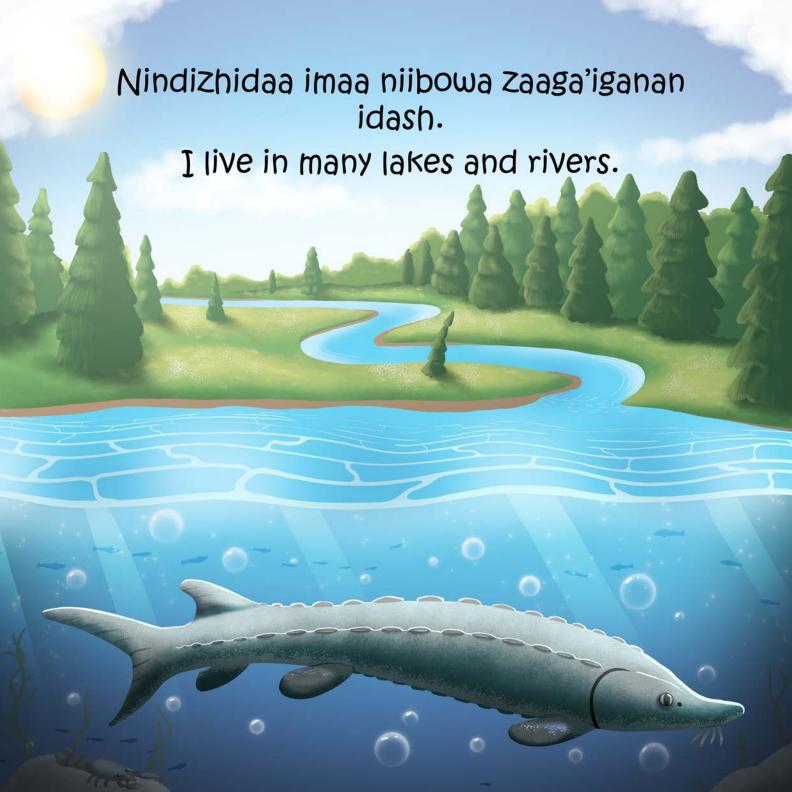

I thank the Ontario Ministry of Education, Seven Generations Education Institute and the SaylTFirst Anishinaabemowin Language Revitalization Project.

Miigwech

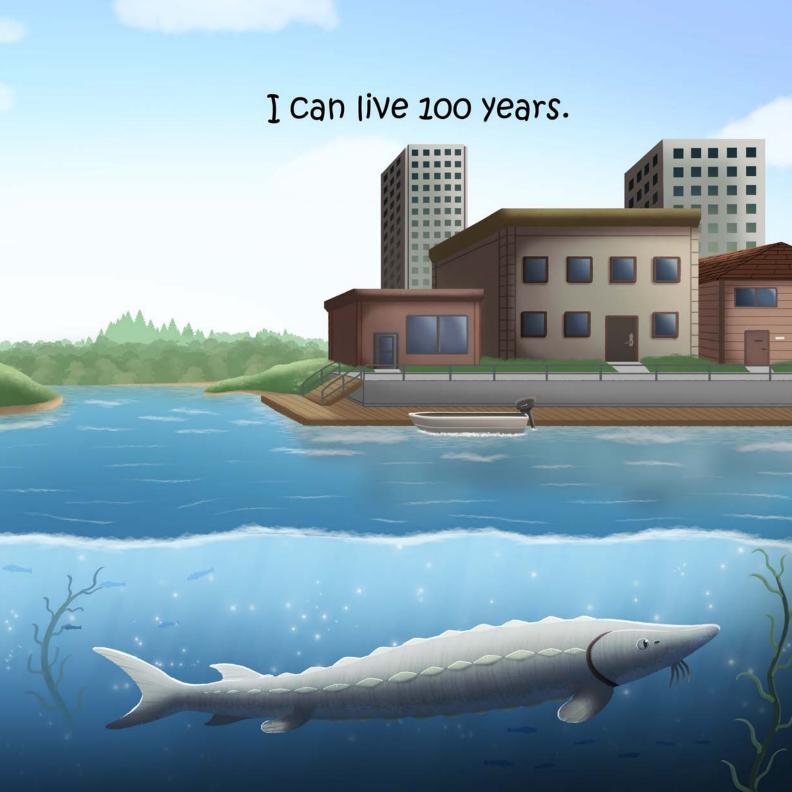

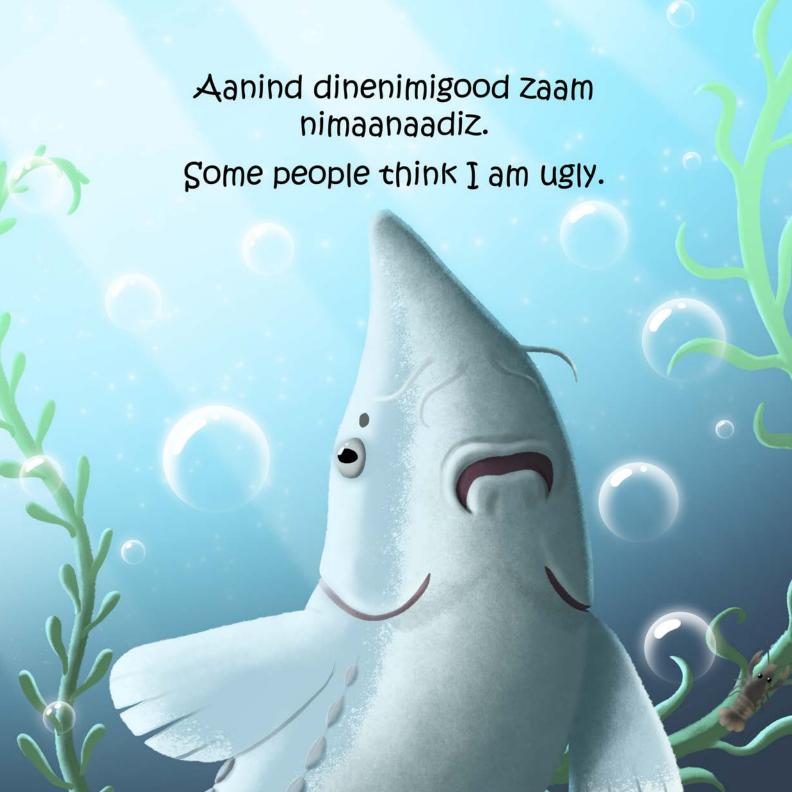

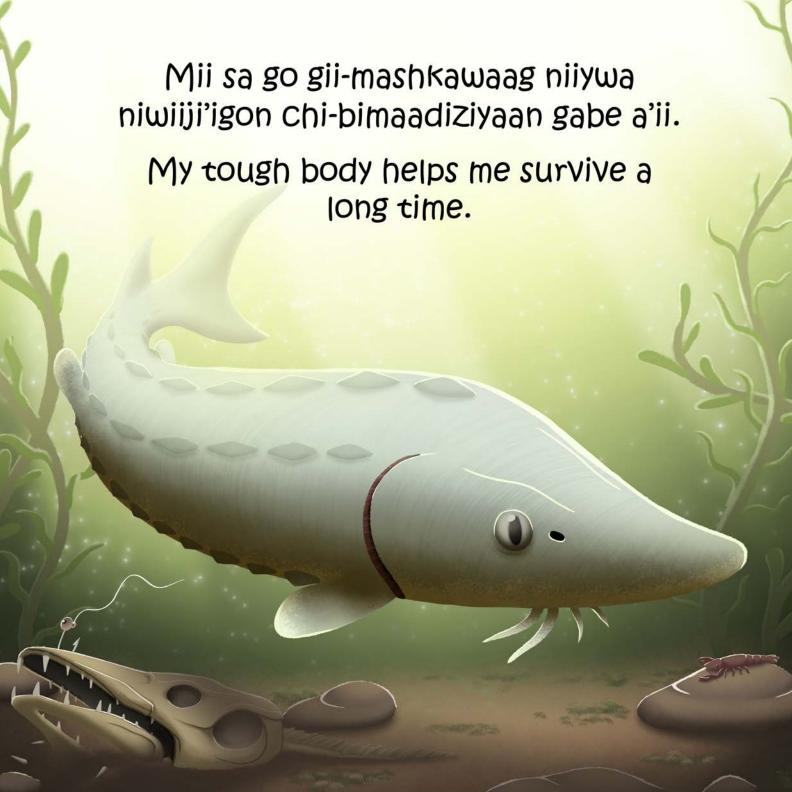

Gichi-inendaanan onowe Niiwin miishidoonaanesan gaa'ayaayaan.

I have four whiskers that are very important to me.

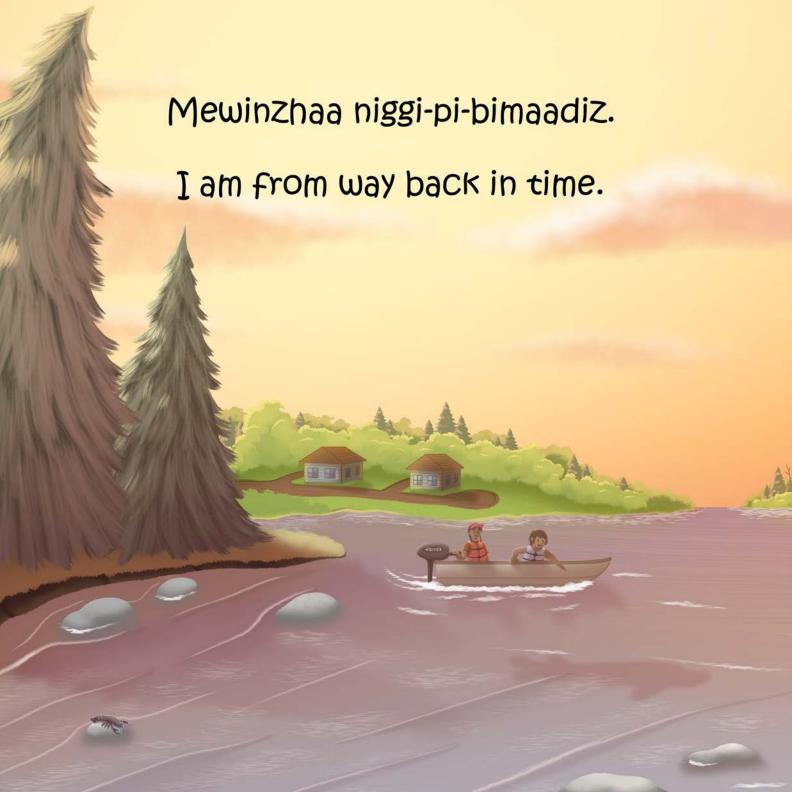

Ninda-abajitoonan nimiishidoonaanensan chi-miikaman ge miijimaan.

I use my whiskers to find food.

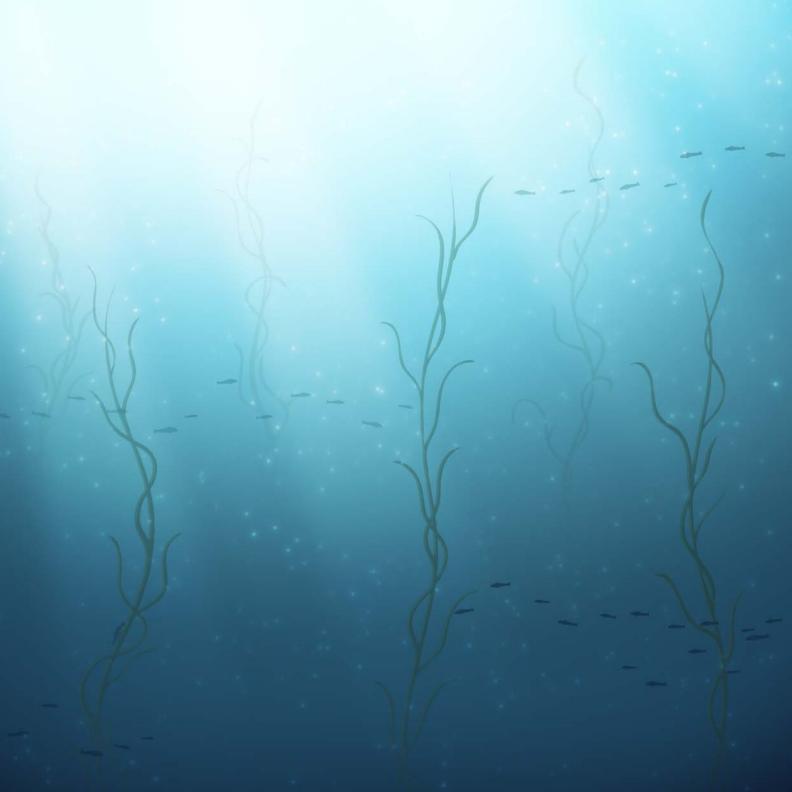

Join Name in exploring his underwater world and learn how he relates to the environment around him. Name is the story of a prehistoric fresh water fish who continues to survive and thrive in the waters he swims in, as he is able to adapt and live in harmony with humans and Caretakers of the waters.

A critical step to improving the vitality of Anishinaabemowin is to increase the sounds transferring from the parent to the child at an early age. This book is designed to allow both speakers and non-speakers the ability to pass the Ojibwe language onto their youth. The translations in the book give parents the ability to practice and to read this book to their children in Anishinaabemowin.

The Rainy River District area is undergoing an effort to put Anishinaabemowin back into the homes of the Anishinaabeg. Anishinaabemodaa – Let's speak Ojibwe, is the Ontario Ministry of Education sponsored partnership between the Rainy River District School Board, SaylTFirst and 7 Generations Education Institute with support of the ten area Anishinaabe Nations to help Wake Up Ojibwe within individuals in our community.

Audio support can be found on our website. Videos can be viewed on a cell phone or iPad by hovering the camera over the front cover of this book or viewed directly off of our site. A free app will need to be downloaded.

Downloading instructions and videos provided for audio support can be found at:

www.anishinaabemodaa.ca and wakingupojibwe.ca

