

Fish Net Scramble

How to Play:

All players except for one stand in a circle. The player whom is left in the middle is the caller. The caller gives each of the other players the name of a fish. To start the game, the caller calls out the names of two different fish. The students representing these fish must exchange spots. The caller also tries to secure a spot. The player left without a spot is the new caller. The caller can also say, "Giigoonyikedaa!", at any moment. This means everyone must scramble and exchange spots. Continue playing until everyone has had a turn.
